Learn how to ID invasive plant species

These include: Callery pear, Chinese bushclover, Japanese angelica tree, poison hemlock and others and how to report their locations to the NJISST.

Invasive Species ID Workshops will be held on:

September 8th: 9:00am, Borton's Mill Park, East of Croft Farm – Cross over 41 and make a right into the parking lot in Cherry Hill

September 29th: 9:00am, Croft Farm on Bortons Mill Road in Cherry Hill (During National Public Lands Day Event)

Please join South Jersey Land and Water Trust staff member Michael Hogan for 2 invasive species ID workshops with the Cherry Hill Environmental Commission.

The SJLWT has partnered with the New Jersey Invasive Species Strike team, to document the emerging invasive plant species found in southern NJ.

Contact Michael Hogan at 609-476-2086 or hoganphoto@verizon.net for more info.
